ŽILINA

Žilina is a regional and district town in northern Slovakia. It is the fourth largest city in Slovakia in terms of population. The oldest documentary mention of Žilina dates back to 1208, when the town was made up of several Slovak villages. Now Žilina is the administrative, economic, transport and cultural centre of north-western Slovakia. It lies at the confluence of 3 rivers, which is why it is called "the pearl on the river". The historical core of Žilina is a city monument reservation. There are many interesting historical, cultural and natural monuments in the town. In the surrounding area there is a castle, castles, lookout towers and beautiful nature in national parks.

TIPS FOR TRIPS ☺

- ☆ An architectural dominant of the town is the Baroque Church of the Conversion of St. Paul the Apostle with two towers and the Capuchin monastery from the mid-18th century, situated in a square-shaped square Mariánske námestie.
- ☆ The Most Holy Trinity Church (Cathedral) was built around 1400 on the site where there used to be a castle in the 13th century.
- ☆ The Castle of Budatín is the dominant of the northern periphery of Žilina. The Castle has a unique exhibition of tinker's trade products, the only one of its kind in the world.
- ☆ The romantic ruins of Strečno Castle have a history dating back to the middle of the 14th century. Its well-preserved architecture and historical findings are certainly worth exploring.
